OU Officials Discuss Greek House Plans

By Leo Meidlinger

The old cry of "houseless joiner" may not be applicable to fraternity and sorority members on the campus of Omaha University if plans discussed Monday are developed.

The plans, as discussed at a meeting called by University President Dr. Milo Bail, would allow for "additional facilities" for Greek organizations on campus, according to Dean of Student Personnel Donald Pflasterer.

Need

Pflasterer said it wasn't decided if houses, lodges or just what would be added, if anything.

Dean of Women, Elizabeth Hill, the faculty advisor for the Panhellenic Council, Student Center Director, William Gerbracht, who doubles as the Interfraternity Council's faculty advisor, Dean of Administration Kirk Naylor and Mrs. Thelma Engle, Social Director of the Student Center, also attended.

Details

Dean Hill said the question of the "need for such structures, their types and cost" were discussed.

The Dean of Women also described the somewhat detailed procedure an organization must go through to build on campus.

Of course there must be approval by the school's administration plus consent by the organization's national headquarters, if there is one, Dean Hill said.

Questions

Dean Hill noted there are two questions always asked of an active Greek chapter by its "national" when a building application is submitted: "Does your chapter have an alumni organization and what is the status of your building fund, if any?"

The Dean of Women said it was her understanding it was usually the alumni organization who took charge in incorporating to build a house. This is customary procedure, she said, adding the alums generally act as the corporation officers while investing money from the organization as well as from the active chapter.

Funds

The Women's Dean said the sororities on campus have always, (since the fall semester of 1952 when the "national" Greek system was introduced on campus), to her knowledge, had building funds for the particular purpose of constructing houses.

Kinds

Dean Pflasterer said the Panhellenic Council and the Interfraternity Council would meet within the next two weeks to discuss plans submitted by the "Greeks" on what kind of lodging or housing the social organizations would want. Pflasterer said another meeting would be held on Monday, Nov. 30, at which time reports from the two Greek representative organizations would be heard.

8 On OU Faculty Earn Promotions Effective Sept. 65

Eight University of Omaha faculty members received promotions in rank effective September 1, 1965. The action was taken by the University Board of Regents Thursday noon.

Six faculty members were given tenure and promoted: Dr. Walter Beaupre, professor and head of special education and director of speech and hearing therapy; Dr. George Helling, professor and head of sociology; Dr. Wayne Higley, associate professor of accounting; Dr. Hubert Hunzeker, professor and head of mathematics; Dr. M. Gene Newport, associate professor of management; and Raymond Means, associate professor of library science.

Two additional promotions—Dr. Elroy Steele, professor and head of economics; and Verda Rauch, associate professor of secretarial science.

The Board of Regents also voted to accept the resignations of Mrs. Margaret M. Miller, English instructor, effective November 6, and the resignation of Kenneth Nehmer, assistant professor of art, effective December 31.

In other action the board approved the promotions of Ellen Lord to professor and Clois Coon to assistant professor effective February 1, 1965. Both Miss Lord and Miss Coon also received a continuance of their contractual agreements.

Two other faculty members were given tenure—Dr. C. Robert Keppel, assistant professor of chemistry and Dr. D. T. Pedrini, associate professor of psychology.

The Regents also approved dividing the engineering department into four specific areas and named four heads—civil engineering, head Anson D. Marston (professor); industrial and general engineering, head Anson D. Marston (professor); technical institute, head E. E. Kinney (instructor); industrial arts, head C. H. Prewett (professor).

The Regents also made several minor adjustments in the University fee schedule. They also approved the expenditure of $35,000 for campus alterations ranging from air conditioning of the music annex and the fieldhouse offices to lighting (indoors and outdoors).

Francis Kelly, assistant professor of management, will be granted a leave.

The Regents also passed a resolution re-naming the Student Center to the Milo Bail Student Center.

The Regents also rehired on an annual basis 26 faculty members effective September 1, 1965.

The Regents also approved a special accident insurance plan for all full time employees on voluntary basis and without financial obligation or administration by the University.

Final Compromise Leads To Two New AFROTC Program For OU Cadets

By Dick Smith

Professor of Aerospace Studies at the University of Omaha, Lieut. Col. E. P. Ratti, announced Tuesday the initiation of two new Air Force ROTC programs.

Colonel Ratti said the new programs, which are spelled out in the ROTC Vitalization Act of 1964, were the final compromise of the proposed Officer Education Program initiated by the Department of Defense in 1961.

Recently passed by the Eighty-eighth Congress, the bill was signed into law by President Johnson on October 13. Colonel Ratti said the delay in the announcement of the new programs was due to time needed by the Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., to interpret the statute.

The new programs consist of two parts, a two and a four year plan of training and study that could eventually lead to commissions in the Air Force.

Exceptions

Colonel Ratti said the four-year program retains many of the points of the old four-year course in use on OU's campus since 1952, however there are two exceptions.

—Students entering the advanced phase of ROTC will receive a pay hike of $40 per month for 10 months. Under the old program cadets in the advance program received $27 a month over a 12-month period.

—Students entering the advanced program will be required to enlist in the Air Force Reserve.

Under the two-year course of study, the major change in the AFROTC, students will receive the monthly pay hike.

The two-year program is comprised of three parts in addition to the pay hike. It requires:

Summer Camp

—Six weeks of summer training camp before beginning the junior year of college. Prior to this students need not complete any of the basic cadet program as outlined under the four-year plan.

—At the time of enrollment in the program, it will be necessary to enlist in the Air Force Reserve.

Colonel Ratti said cadets taking either of the new ROTC programs will not be required to attend reserve meetings.

Since the contracts of the new program are binding under law (the old ones were not), Colonel Ratti emphasized, "Anyone who fails to complete the advanced program in good faith will be released from all ROTC obligations and discharged from the university's 5 colleges."

Mrs. Bail begins to weep . . . before Bail accepts check.

Bails Receive $10,000 Check For Trip Around The World

Plans are in the wind for Dr. and Mrs. Milo Bail's trip around the world.

Some 133 business leaders and several special guests honored Dr. Bail and his wife with an appreciation banquet last Sunday at the Blackstone Hotel. At this time they were presented with a 10-thousand-dollar check for a trip around the world.

Close To Home

Morris E. Jacobs, president of Bozell and Jacobs advertising agency, told Dr. Bail that his university obligations have kept him too close to home.

"Therefore your friends have decided to enable you to take a trip around the world," Jacobs said in making the presentation.

Dr. Bail was also given a plaque in recognition of his " . . . sixteen years of selfless service as President of the University of Omaha . . . his educational leadership . . . his civic leadership. . ."

Guests

Special guests included Governor and Mrs. Frank Morrison, University of Nebraska Chancellor Clifford Hardin and the president of Creighton University, the Rev. Henry W. Linn, S.J.

Reigning king of Ak-Sar-Ben V. J. Skutt, who served as toastmaster, told Dr. Bail that the group "came here to honor you, and you have honored us."

Dr. Bail challenged the deans of the university departments to carry on "whatever legacy I leave."

He said he was proud of the legacy he leaves the university in terms of staff and persons it has helped educate.

Dean of Student Personnel, Donald Pflasterer, announced this week Thanksgiving vacation will begin Wednesday, Nov. 25, at 9:40 p.m. and end at 7:30 a.m. Monday, Nov. 30.

Pflasterer also said there will be no convocation, as has been the procedure for the past several years.

Freshmen Grades Are Now Ready

That inevitable, sometimes unpredictable and maybe unwanted time of the year is once more upon the freshman students at Omaha University.

Dean of Student Personnel, Donald Pflasterer, noted this week freshmen will be able to pick up their mid-semester grades from counsellors starting today.

Pflasterer said the grades may be obtained at the student's convenience, but added it should be done within the next two weeks.

Grades from teachers are submitted to the academic deans and distributed to the various departmental counsellors in the university's 5 colleges.

Boot Strap's Books Kindle Fire For Lamps Of Learning

More than eight thousand books may be on their way to Iran within the next few weeks if plans by Omaha University Bootstrappers succeed.

The project—“Oil for the Lamps of Learning”—sponsored by the Pen and Sword Club will attempt to collect and send all kinds of textbooks to the English language school in the city of Teheran.

Dean of the College of Adult Education William T. Utey gave the drive an unofficial kickoff Tuesday afternoon with the donation of a number of books from his department to drive chairman and president of the Pen and Sword Club Colonel James D. Hunsaker.

The drive officially begins Monday.

Colonel Hunsaker said the book drive is an attempt to overcome a “desperate need for books in a nation where 89 per cent of the population is illiterate.”

Colonel Hunsaker said after the books have been screened they will be packaged for shipment by the ROTC cadets and shipped by military transport.

The drive will be conducted over the next three weeks with a goal of eight thousand volumes. Colonel Hunsaker said if each student at the university gives one book he will easily meet the goal.

Book drops will be provided in the Student Center and in the offices of the College of Adult Education located in room 182 of the Administration Building.

Computer Center Is Open For Poll

From “Tic Tac Toe” to important surveys are calculated in the computer room in the new wing of the Applied Arts building.

Machines

The center contains a card sorting machine, card punch accounting machine and programming machine. Cards used in the programming machine are kept from various departments throughout Omaha University.

Student Work

Very little of the work in this department is administrative. Most of the students are working on problems from classes.

“Students do not have to be taking computer classes to work on the facilities in the center,” Mr. Ashley stressed. “We even have students from high schools who come in to work on the machines.”

The center is open from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Monday through Friday.

Two OU Classes See Telelecture

Two Omaha University classes, both public relations and marketing, attended a special telelecture at 7 p.m. in the Conference Center last night.

Robert W. Hefty, the public relations manager of the Ford Division of the Ford Motor Company spoke to the classes from his home in Detroit Michigan. A question and answer period followed the lecture.

Hefty spoke to the classes on the Mustang, and how it was first introduced to the public.

Spacemobile

The University of Omaha is hosting the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Spacemobile on November 23 and 24, in the Gene Eppley Library Conference Center auditorium.

The lecture-demonstration presentation will be free of charge to all students and faculty members. They are scheduled at the following times: Monday, November 23—11:30 a.m.-12:20, 2:30-3:20, and 7:30 p.m.-8:30 p.m. Tuesday, November 24: 11:30 a.m.-12:20 p.m.

Mullen Will Present Recital Featuring Chamber Music

Mr. Clarke Mullen, assistant professor of music at the University of Omaha, will give a piano recital in the Conference Center Auditorium of the Gene Eppley Library Sunday, November 22, at 7:30 p.m.

The recital is to feature contemporary chamber music from the works of such renowned artists as Bach, Bartok, Chopin and Ravel.

Degrees

Mr. Mullen recently completed a Master of Science degree in piano at the Julliard School of Music in New York City. Prior to this, he obtained Bachelor of Music degrees in both piano and organ. In 1954, he was awarded a Fulbright Grant to Paris.

As soloist, Mr. Mullen has appeared with the Oklahoma

City Symphony Orchestra in international radio broadcasts and the Wichita Falls, Tex. Symphony Orchestra. He has played numerous recitals in Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas, the American Embassy in Paris, France and the Julliard School of Music in New York City.

Good Attendance

A concert given last Sunday at the University by one of Mr. Mullen's more accomplished students, Miss Kathleen Cross of Central High School, was extremely well performed and attended, according to Dr. James B. Peterson, head of the OU music department.

“Mr. Mullen is one of the most outstanding pianists in the Midwest,” said Dr. Peterson. Anyone having an appreciation of music will undoubtedly be greatly intrigued by attending the recital this Sunday, he said. There will be no admission charge.

Five From OU Go To Kansas To Study Legislation

Five members of the Omaha University faculty and administration visited Kansas City recently where they attended a one-day session to study new educational legislation enacted under the Economic Opportunity Act (the Anti-Poverty Bill) of 1964.

Dean of Administration, Kirk Naylor and Dean of Student Personnel, Donald Pflasterer headed the OU group which also included university controller Harold Keefover, Robert Wolfe, a member of the university's accounting office who is the administrator for National Defense Student Loans on campus, and Professor E. E. Kinney of the engineering department.

The meeting, held at the University of Missouri at Kansas City, was sponsored jointly by the Work-Study Program of the act and Region 6 of the Student Financial Aid Branch of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Pflasterer said several hundred university financial officers and representatives attended the meeting.

Pflasterer noted the meeting was held so new legislation passed by the now adjourned 88th Congress could be defined and discussed and changes in loan requirements described for the school administrators. He added, although the session was informative not all the questions were answered and, he said, hopefully, more should be learned about the matters in the near future.

Pflasterer pointed out the university has not made a decision on whether to take advantage of the new legislation with so many of the details yet to be worked out.

Dr. Bail Hosts His Last Open House

President Milo Bail hosted his 16th and last Open House Sunday as the University of Omaha opened its doors to an estimated 1000 persons between the hours of 2 and 4:30 p.m.

All faculty members were on hand to greet students and parents. Demonstrations were held in the various science labs.

Before meeting the faculty, visitors attended a convocation in the auditorium between 2 and 3 p.m. After that they were off to meet the faculty.

Refreshments were served in the S. C. Ballroom, where a pictorial review of Dr. Bail's accomplishments and devotion to the university was on display.

University to Host “Career” Program

Saturday, November 21, the University of Omaha will hold a Career Day from 9 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. The program is sponsored by the Omaha Urban League and the Mayor's Bi-Racial Employment Committee.

The Career Day program stresses equal employment opportunity, and will explore the professional, technical, business and clerical career possibilities in the Omaha area. The program is aimed at the working force of tomorrow—the junior high and high school students of today.

Representatives of 14 Omaha companies will be available to discuss opportunities and answer career questions.

Guest speakers include Edward Hodges, Personnel Employment Manager of Michigan Bell Telephone Co., John Clair, Director of Compensatory Education for the Kansas City, Missouri School System, and Dr. Samuel Proctor, General Director of Public Interpretation for the National Council of Churches. Dr. Proctor is also a former Associate Director of the Peace Corps.

Free bus transportation and lunch will be provided for the registrants.

Bring out the formal togs, Greeks, it's that time of year again.

Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity is sponsoring its annual Garnet and Gold Ball, November 27, at Schimmels' Indian Hills. The dance is open to all Greeks.

Highlighting the evening will be the announcement of the Pi Kap Dream Girl. She will be chosen from five candidates by fraternity vote. The girls vying for the title are Janie Carter, Sigma Kappa; Judy Eichhorn, Chi Omega; Gerri Lewis, Zeta Tau Alpha; Judy Sundburg, Independent; and Mary Sue Winsor, Alpha Xi Delta.

The Dream Girl will be crowned during intermission, and will also receive a traveling trophy.

The dance will be from 9 until midnight. The Dave Kavitch Orchestra will provide the music. Mike Sweet, social chairman, will be master of ceremonies.

Angel Toy Drive To Begin Nov. 30

Plans are underway for the annual Toys for Tots drive and dance.

The members of Angels Flight sponsor the week long drive for toys for needy children. It will be held from November 30 through December 4.

Barrels will be placed in the halls of the Admin. Building, the Applied Arts Building and the Student Center. Students are asked to contribute toys, used and new, by placing them in the barrels.

The drive will be highlighted by a dance December 4. Admission to the dance will be one toy per couple.

The toys will be given to the local Marine Corps Reserve unit. The Marines will repair the toys that need attention and handle the distribution.

Discussion Held By OU Leaders

The challenge of leadership in today's society was discussed at a seminar held Tuesday, November 17. Members of a panel and officers of campus organizations participated in the informal question-and-answer session sponsored by Waakiya.

Panel members included Dr. Rosalie Neleigh, Mr. Robert Root, Mrs. Owen Giles, Mr. U. E. Semans, and Fr. Gerald Noonan. Each spoke of leadership in terms of its relationship to their respective fields of business, education, politics and religion.

All participants were given a chance to share their views on the development, techniques and responsibilities of leadership.

Biology Club Speaker To Tell Of Fisheries

The Biology Club will hold a meeting Tuesday, December 1 in room 344 Adm. at 3:30 p.m.

Mr. Gene Miller, fishery biologist from the Nebraska State Games Commission will show slides and speak on "Field Techniques in Stocking Fish and Regulating Fish Population."

Biology Club members and anyone interested are invited to attend.

Carol Hutzell, Ben Jacobs, Leonard Jensen, Jim Jones, Diane Madson, Gary Mandolfo, Lee McCollum, David Olewline, Joe Tollefson, Phillip Williams and Ellen Zelinsky complete the list.

These members were taken in an annual drive sponsored by ISA a few weeks ago.

Much Traveled OU Student Eager For Graduation - Plans Peace Corps Career

by Marilyn Higgs

Barbara (Bonnie) Kennington Hill has visited numerous countries and she isn't ready to quit yet. Bonnie is eager to graduate so she can join the Peace Corps. She said the Arab world would be her choice of assignments, "but I'll be fascinated with any place they send me." More than anything else, this 20-year-old co-ed loves to travel.

Bonnie was thrilled when her step-father accepted a foreign assignment for his company. As a result her first three years of high school were in such exciting places as Venezuela, Iran, and Lebanon.

For her senior year in high school, Bonnie enrolled at Central and lived with her grandmother here in Omaha. She received a regents scholarship to the University of Omaha, and plans to earn her bachelors degree majoring in French and Spanish.

June Means Travel

But, each June she packs her books away and joins her family wherever they are located. This eager traveler is not content to stay in one place for too long. Bonnie tries to visit as many countries as time permits. Last summer she spent a week in Los Angeles before flying to Honolulu where she attended summer school at the University. From there she went to Tokyo and Hong Kong for a few days; then on to Bangkok, Thailand where her parents, sister and brother are living.

Family in Bangkok

In Bangkok, Bonnie spent six weeks sight-seeing, swimming and sailing which are her favorite summer sports. She also enjoyed meeting the natives and learning many of their customs. It was possible for her to become acquainted with many young people through the American Field Service which arranges group meetings for students who will attend school in the United States during their senior year of high school. Bonnie's mother does volunteer work for the organization.

Life in Bangkok is quite different from the United States. Unlike the conventional pets found in American homes, Bonnie's family has a pet mongoose. "It's quite affectionate if it likes you," said Bonnie. She went on to say although the animal is very small, "it makes the loudest noise of any animal I've ever heard."

Galloping Ghost—Spooky

"The Galloping Ghost" was the name her family used referring to their guard who comes at seven p.m. and guards the house until seven a.m. Bonnie described him as a native over six feet tall who dresses completely in white. "He's a little spooky because he never seems to need sleep," she added.

Unfailing Rain

The Monsoon season was in full force while Bonnie was in Bangkok. "It rained unfailingly at five o'clock in the afternoon, and almost every night," she commented with a resigned tone. Another unusual aspect of life in Thailand is the task of spraying for termites every five weeks.

Bonnie is enthusiastic about almost everything. She loves the fine arts as well as being interested in most sports. She really enjoys classical music but also likes a lot of the popular music. However, she said with amusement, "The Beatles don't excite me very much!"

Seasonal Favorites

Commenting on the world, Bonnie said Finland is her favorite winter European country because it offers excellent conditions for skiing, the winter sport she likes best. But during the warm season, Bonnie loves the beauty of Greece.

On the way back to Omaha this fall, Bonnie stopped in Helsinki, "I was highly impressed because it was so modern and beautiful."

She also visited briefly in Teheran, Istanbul, Vienna, and Washington, D. C.

"I wish everyone could see all the places I have," she said, "It certainly made me appreciate the United States and gave me a sound basis for comparison. I enjoyed the opportunity to see so many different people and their ways of life."

Bonnie added that after traveling throughout the United States, she decided San Francisco is her favorite city.

Honors Banquet Set For Monday

Corinthians, honor society, will hold an Honors Banquet for the 15 new initiates who were eligible for membership.

The Banquet will be held Monday evening at 6:00 p.m. in Dining Rooms A & B, SC.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Cecil L. Wittson, Dean of the University of Nebraska College of Medicine. He will talk on "New Horizons for the Disabled Child."

The new Corinthians are Floyd Bergman, Jennifer Cackin, Erleen Christensen, Ruth Everman, Linda Flack, Myra Hellbusch, Janet Kamphuis and Anne Kochanowicz.

Others are Diane Mahoney, Kathleen McGuire, Ludwig Mehrer, Mary Poppino, Charles Sheppard, Sally Sheppard and Judith Trout.

An accumulative average of 3.5 and a total of at least 58 credit hours is required for membership.

Latin America Frustrated! - - 'Look' Editor Speaks To 300

Appearing Wednesday night before a near-capacity crowd of 300 on campus was Institute of World Affairs guest speaker, Leonard Gross.

Gross is senior editor for Look magazine and specializes in Latin America. Author of several books concerning Latin America and a Freedom Foundation Award winner, Gross has been stationed the last two years in Rio de Janeiro as Bureau Chief.

Frustrated

According to Gross, Latin America is an area of frustration. This is marked by unfinished buildings for example, he said. "They have a poor sense of reality." They start grand projects but usually run out of money before they are finished. "Everytime they see a foreign object such as toothpaste or an automobile, they think of their country as a failure because of their inability to produce these articles," he said.

Must Care

"I am an optimist on Latin America," he said. Most Latin Americans care about what happens to their country today. Before, he said, this was not always so. Conditions in Latin America today are considerably better than they were four years ago. "Latin America is now on the move," he said.

The people want something and they mean to have it, Gross said. "The question is, how do they mean to achieve it." According to Gross, the people have a choice of four alternatives. They can either go Communist, who are not doing well at all, Nationalistic, Militaristic or turn toward Democracy.

Gross said he feels there is a "tremendous place" for a country like the United States in Latin America. The recent defeat of Communism in Latin America has given us a breathing space, he declared.

National Security

We have a very good reason to help Latin America, he said. "Our security is at stake. If they go Communist, our strategic position will be gravely threatened." He said finding missiles in Cuba is relatively simple because Cuba is isolated and sticks out like a sore thumb. Compare this to finding missiles in Latin America, he said. It would be like hunting for a pin in a forest.

Wednesday night's lecture marked the last of the Institute of World Affairs series for this season. They will resume again next October.

"Omaha Scene . . ." Wins Art Award

by Diane Cade

The imagination of Joe Renwolinski, an art major, recently won the Bell Telephone Company Art Contest with "Omaha Scene From Council Bluffs" which is a landscape painted in his own abstract style.

"I like to use a lot of blues and browns accented by high-toned colors in my pictures," he explained. The winning 36 inch by 40 inch painting took Renwolinski a month to complete. He worked about two hours a night.

One of 80

The 27 year-old senior and examinee, was one of 80 artists to enter the Bell contest. "Since the contest was open to both amateur and professional artists, I just submitted my painting and hoped for the best," said Renwolinski.

The contest was sponsored by Bell to select an original oil for the cover of the new phone books. "Of the original 80 paintings," noted Renwolinski, "the best seven were chosen in the semi-final contest."

Later the judges selected four from the seven to be presented to the Bell officials for the final decision. "I was surprised and happy to receive a check from Bell for $95," he added.

Working part-time in a bodyshop, Renwolinski plans to do illustration work in the Omaha area after graduation.

Slumber Party

The pledges of Alpha Xi Delta will hold their annual pledge-active slumber party tomorrow evening. It will be held at the home of Carol Bachus.

Thanksgiving Is Time of Thanks?

By J. C. Milton

"Thanksgiving is the only time of year, When folks get smashed on wine, instead of beer."

Poem submitted by Anonymous

Be that as it may, when the pilgrims introduced Thanksgiving to the Indians (their reaction: "First time play, white man game— plenty fun."). Thanksgiving was equated with thanks giving. Nowadays it is more synonymous with gluttony. Things change— don't they? And yet, there must be a multitude of blessings that we, as students, could be thankful for besides food and wine. (Name one.)

(Two hours later.) Aha! How about the wonderful parking situation here at OU? Somebody once said that there are only two types of parking at this University — inadequate and planned. I think that's rather crude. I mean, just because that particular individual had to take a cab from his parking place in Elmwood (at a cost of $3.25), is no reason to be so bitter. Things could have been much worse. What if there were no cabs? What if he had to walk (Heaven forbid!)? What if he had to eat lunch in the Ouampi Room? You see? — there is always a darker side to every gloomy problem.

Getting back to how things change— shouldn't we be thankful for the change machines, which, not unlike the Cornucopia, are bountifully filled to overflowing? I think not. After all, there is no need to be sarcastic about a day which gives students a two-day vacation.

it's GREAT to be IN!!

Attitude Earns Lydia White Typical Indiannes Award

Lydia Ann White was named last week as this year's Typical Indianne by fellow members of the precision marching group.

"Typical Indianne" is a title that is bestowed annually to the outstanding freshman participant. Lydia was selected on the basis of her attitude and enthusiasm exhibited in the practice sessions.

In addition to the title, Lydia received a trophy and had her name inscribed on a plaque which lists the yearly holders of the title.

Her other activities on campus include Orchestis, Ski Club and Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority.

Lydia hopes to enter into a good secretarial position once she has completed her studies in the College of Business Administration.

Party for Bails After Musical

University of Omaha alumni, past and present regents, faculty members of the art, music, drama, the womens' P. E. department and the entire cast of OU's "South Pacific" will honor Dr. and Mrs. Milo Bail at a special party following this evening's performance.

The party is just another offering in tribute to Dr. Bail who will retire from the presidency of OU February, 1965. "We've invited the alums who, at sometime during the last 14 years, have participated in an OU musical," said Dr. E. L. Clark, director and head of the OU drama department. These alums, primarily from the Omaha area, will perform some musical selections during the festivities especially favored by President Bail.

Refreshments will be served at the party, scheduled to be held in dining rooms A and B of the Student Center. "We expect between 175 and 200," said Mrs. T. Engle, social director of the student center.

Lefler Named VP At Kansas Confab

Physical plant head Clarence Lefler gained an impressive title at the twelfth annual Physical Plant Administrators Conference held at the University of Kansas, November 8-11.

Lefler is now vice-president of the Central States Regional Association of Physical Plant Administrators of Universities and Colleges.

Conference

The conference was based on the theme "Your Plant Today." It included panel discussions, presentations of papers regarding the field of study, a problem clinic, a campus inspection and an annual meeting.

The conference was also attended by Mrs. Lefler and Robert Krenzer, assistant manager of the OU Physical Plant.

Straight A's, "Anyone Could"

by Lorraine Jansky

"Anyone could do it," was senior Keith Christian's evaluation of his 98 hours of straight "A" grades. "I'm certainly not an 'A' student," he insisted. "I came out of high school a strictly average student."

The 26-year-old civil engineering student almost did not enter college. After high school, he started working as a draftsman for Northern Natural Gas. He was one of 15 laid-off in September, 1961, and three days later, Christian enrolled at OU.

"I probably would never have gone to college," he claimed,

Christian... Lots of A's

"but I had worked my way up in the company and when looking for another job, everyone wanted to start me low again. So I realized the value of a college education."

Four Years Incentive

Many people felt he could not go back to school and succeed after being away from studying almost four and a half years, but Christian claims this challenge only increased his incentive.

However, Christian does have interests outside of studies. He spends summers working at Northern Natural and much of his sparetime doing sculpture, which he finds "tremendously rewarding and satisfying."

The six foot four student does not take part in fraternities or athletics. He feels these activities only blur the real goals of college. "I don't believe in working during the school year either," he continued. "You can't do justice to a job and a college education too."

This modest scholar attributes his unusually high class standing to "a few breaks and a lot of study." He has held a University Honors Scholarship since his second semester and was recently granted $200 a semester on the Western Electric Scholarship.

Hill Writes Article For Bus Journal

The November issue of "Personnel Journal" includes an article written by Dr. Jack Hill, College of Business Administration professor.

The article, "Discharge Without Notice," covers Dr. Hill's research on employee discharge in Omaha businesses.

"The employee is fired on the day of his notice. There is no time lapse. This is done to prevent damage to a business," Dr. Hill commented.

New Title

Lieut. Col. Emilo P. Ratti, head of the 470th AFOTC Detachment at Omaha U. has been given a new title. Formerly he was Professor of Air Science, now he's titled Professor of Aerospace Studies.

Loan Fund Is Richer By $250

The Administrative Management Society presented Dr. Milo Bail with a $250 check to add to the student loan fund. The presentation was made at the Annual Education Night meeting of A.M.S. in the Student Center Ballroom, Wednesday evening.

The meeting honored high school teachers who teach business education in the Omaha area. "Education Night is a way of saying thank you to teachers. It lets businessmen understand the objectives of the teacher," said Dr. Jack Hill, OU business professor. Dr. Hill is the current chairman of the Omaha chapter of A.M.S.

Marvin Werve, Vice-President of Omaha National Bank in charge of Consumer Credit Department, was the guest speaker. He spoke on the recently passed Nebraska time sales amendment.

The $250 given to the non-interest bearing fund will raise the total amount to $1000. Students in financial need may borrow from this fund.

Musical Cast Braces For Sunday Matinee

The concern expressed by some students over the casting of "South Pacific" has not carried into the viewing of the performances. It seems now the only concern is to get tickets for the play.

Due to the large number of students who were unable to get tickets for either the Thursday, Friday or Saturday night performances, the play has been extended to include a Sunday afternoon matinee at 2 p.m.

According to Donald Pflasterer, dean of student personnel, the matinee is an unprecedented first. Pflasterer also said due to the unavailability of reserved seat tickets, the performance will be on a first come first serve basis. Tickets must be picked up on the first floor of the Student Center for admission.

Ivan Christiansen, university business manager, is in charge of tickets.

Bon Voyage . . .

Prior to the recent election, some conservatives stated they were going to move to a foreign country if their candidate didn't win. Well, he didn't and as yet I haven't been trampled by the great rush for the borders.

Lack of funds was my main reason for staying—or at least it was until a pamphlet was directed to my attention. It concerns a do-it-yourself to Europe for less than $100.

Here's the pitch. A Swiss travel agency is offering a three-month summer visit to Europe at a cost of $65 per student (their figure). With every pitch there is a catch and this one is a lulu. The student has to work.

A round trip flight from New York to London adds up to $230. From London, the student goes to Heidelberg by train (round trip cost is $25).

The agency says the entire trip, including cash for sightseeing, shopping, etc., costs $405. In Heidelberg, a job is found for the student at a cost of $35. This brings the total debits to $440.

The job provided will enable the student to realize a profit of $125 per month after deductions, room and board. This means the student's total take-home pay is $375.

Subtract this from your debits of $440 and you have a cost of $65 . . . a perfect, low-cost vacation for those who can't live under the present administration.

I'm willing to bet that after three months, things won't be so bad back in the states.

OU Will Offer 2 ROTC Programs

reserve at the time he is officially disenrolled".

He said the two-year plan is anticipated to begin with the fall semester of 1965. He went on to say the AFROTC department at the university is presently in a period of transition to the new four year plan.

Colonel Ratti added a four year scholarship is available under the new law, but details have not yet been worked out.

He said any students interested in either of the new plans are welcome to discuss questions with him in his office in room 177 in the Administration Building.

Colonel Allyn Visits Omaha U.

Colonel Robert H. Allyn, Area Commandant of Area F, will conclude his visit of the AFROTC department today. Colonel Allyn, from the Air University at Maxwell Air Force, Ala., made his semi-annual trip to OU to confer with 470th Detachment members and members of the university administration.

Faulty Devices Trouble Physics Department Staff

"Molehills are mountains to the physics dept."

That's the word from Prof. John G. McMillan, department head. Earlier in the semester the department received an air trough that was defective. It was sent back to the factory and a replacement was shipped.

The replacement doesn't work either. There is a slight distortion on the metal gliding surface which is caused by a weld on the backside of the channel. This prevents the gliding carriage from operating. McMillan says that this is unnoticeable at a passing glance yet it completely destroys the value of a $500 piece of equipment.

According to McMillan the department has been plagued with defective, faulty or shorted equipment. By shorted, he means that all parts of a piece of equipment haven't been sent in one shipment.

"Man hasn't been superseded by a computer yet. Careful handling and inspection is a must with scientific apparatus," McMillan said.

Other defective or faulty equipment includes: electrical meters being sent in the wrong size, variable resistances that were open—they wouldn't conduct electricity and glassware that was sent "brutally" handled and broken.

When asked if the department is going to get a replacement for the air trough replacement, McMillan replied, "No."

Students Hurt Fri. In Auto Accident

Lieut. Col. R. M. Norwood, 56, a bootstrapper at the University of Omaha, is reported in satisfactory condition this week after suffering internal injuries and a broken right knee last Friday night in a two-car accident at 25th and M Streets.

Norwood was a passenger in a car driven by Laurence A. McIntyre, 34, also a bootstrapper. McIntyre and the driver of the other car, Jack Lee McCamish, 26, suffered minor injuries.

Honor Students Guests At Coffee

Dr. Milo Bail held a coffee hour for University honor students at 4 p.m. Monday in the student ballroom.

According to Assistant Student Personnel Dean Elizabeth Hill, "This is Dr. Bail's way of recognizing high scholarship. It also gives the students a chance to meet with the Board of Regents."

District 66 Superintendent Vaughn Phelps was guest speaker for the meeting.

Yearbook Ships Pages To Printer

Sheri Hronek, editor of the 1965 TOMAHAWK, shipped off one-third of the pages for this year's yearbook this week as the book's first deadline came up.

Senior pictures are being taken at the Jean Sardou studio, located at Brandeis in the Crossroads. Upcoming graduates are urged to either call or stop by to make an appointment. There is no fee; however, all pictures must be taken by January 1.

The TOMAHAWK will have 336 pages this year.

The Alumni Association is currently checking into prices on having all of its records and information placed on data cards.

If this is done, it would eliminate a lot of work and confusion in compiling information for class reunions and other gatherings.

The Alumni Association also announced that emergency loans are still available to OU students.

Students may borrow up to $5 by going to the Alumni Office on the second floor of the student center, showing their ID card and signing a pledge promising to repay the loan within 30 days.

If the student fails to repay the money within the allotted time, he is fined five cents a week.

Debaters At Bradley

Omaha University varsity debaters DeReef Greene and Paul Maye are at Bradley University, Peoria, Ill., competing in the Senior Cross-Examining Division debates.

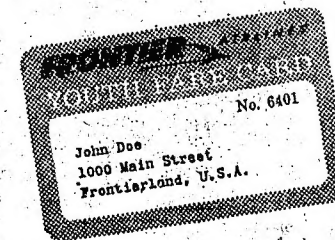

Four OU freshman debaters—Mary Jo Brandt, Dennis Adams, Jim Foral and Janet Volte—are there competing in the novice debates.

Mancuso: "OU Will Draw At Rosenblatt!"

In last week's edition of the GATEWAY, the first part of a three part study on the football program at Omaha University was presented to the reader. That section dealt with the problems centering around student support and attendance at games plus the hazards in playing opposite University of Nebraska games during the afternoons. While it is generally conceded that a switch to night football is the answer, there are many extenuating circumstances dealing with play under the stars. This section will deal with those difficulties. Again, the views expressed do not necessarily reflect the views of the Administration, coaches, or the Faculty Athletic Committee as a whole.

Part Two Night Football by Mike Moran

A few years ago, when it became apparent that the University of Omaha could not successfully compete with the University of Nebraska for the football dollar, a special committee made a study on the possibilities of placing lights on the campus field and playing all games at night.

Estimates of the costs, after an exhausting and comprehensive study, ranged from twenty thousand dollars to seventy thousand.

A plan calling for attractive metal poles on the East side and rewarded by an audience that spent most of the time sitting on its hands.

So now the wheels are in motion. It is time to do something about a sorry situation that sees Omaha University unable to match even Nebraska small school brothers in fan support despite a program far above the others in calibre and quantity.

If OU football is to be just a pretty ornament on the wall or kept going just to please the whims of one or two important officials, then one would say the present setup is more than adequate.

But for one, I am tired of hearing students ask me Tuesday of the following week, "Who won the OU game Saturday?" Such ignorance may be thought unforgivable, but can one blame the student entirely?

Had the game been played at a time not conflicting with other interests such as a job, studying or the Cornhusker game at Lincoln, he might have known that answer.

usual gusto. That in itself is a reassuring thought.

Mancuso played his Omaha U football when games were played at Benson High Field. He knows what good crowds and good promotion can do for a team and its public.

Given a chance, the man guarantees success.

Key Games At Rosenblatt?

Take the 1965 schedule and look at it carefully. On no less than four of five home games, Nebraska U has games at Lincoln in direct conflict with OU.

With Husker interest on the upgrade and OU interest on the skids, one can quickly imagine what next year's OU attendance can be.

But . . . Idaho State (Sept. 18) and Bradley (Oct. 2) offer two big name attractions that could and would sell to Omaha football buffs.

Take these two key contest, move them to Rosenblatt Stadium with an 8 p.m. kickoff time, and Mr. Mancuso might be talking in terms of 7000 to 8000 people in the stands.

The exposure might even lead to increased attendance at home games at OU Stadium. The University cannot justify moving all home games to Rosenblatt Stadium.

Homecoming is just exactly what it means and it would seem blasphemous to have the yearly attraction on any field except our own.

The increased revenue from the downtown games might be put to use in convenient ways by the University. Many more people will be available at night. Students can enjoy a Saturday evening watching something that they can be proud of as Omaha U students.

Lights At OU Impractical

At the present time, installation of lights on the campus gridiron is not practical for a variety of reasons. Foremost among these is the very fact that many other expensive items are needed for the student body, this includes buildings and parking facilities, just to mention two.

The problem of Omaha high schools wanting to use a lighted OU field appears to be out of the picture right now. The Omaha schools will have adequate stadium facilities within two years as they solve their own problems.

But on the subject of lights at OU Stadium, it is a project that will require much more work and considerable thought.

Right now, something still can be done and must be done, concerning night football. Rosenblatt Stadium seems to be a very practical answer to these problems of attendance.

It seems inconceivable to the public that OU could let a good thing go out the window without ever giving it a try. If Mancuso is wrong, and the fans do not turn out even after switching to the Stadium, then there is more to the problem than meets the eye and we can leave it to the experts.

Conference Problems

Representatives from all four CIC schools were given instructions to inquire into the possibility of expanding the league to two more teams after St. Benedict's dropped out two years ago.

The Missouri State schools were given invitations but declined on the grounds that they did not want to give up NCAA affiliation. CIC members are NAIA affiliated and play under those rules.

Kearney State of Nebraska declined on the grounds that they do not give athletic scholarships and therefore could not keep pace with CIC programs. Since then, no formal invitations have been issued and the CIC still plods along as a stop-gap conference for member schools.

Omaha U plays these schools knowing that fan knowledge of the opponents is almost nonexistent and that the situation is exactly the same when OU goes South to play the Kansas schools.

The CIC is going to be forced into expansion if it is not to die out because of poor interest by member schools. Certain OU officials would like to see a combined Nebraska-Kansas conference that would include the CIC schools and the Nebraska State Colleges. However, the Cornhusker schools certainly would feel that they could not keep pace with their Kansas brothers and Omaha University in the field of scholarship help to athletes.

Going independent can lead to attractive football schedules, until you beat a team a couple of years in a row. It becomes quite difficult to reschedule a team that you have walloped two years running.

A conference seems the answer, but what conference and what teams? Only time will tell on this problem. Meanwhile the CIC is fighting for its life with just four teams that care very little about each other, and have little local appeal on each other's home campus.

Summary

The ideas presented above lead to the inevitable conclusion that night football must be given one more good look. If it fails, then another solution must be found. It is impractical to consider a full night schedule, either with lights at OU or with all games at Rosenblatt Stadium. The answer lies somewhere between the two . . . a compromise between the two football fields.

Certainly moving two choice home attractions to Rosenblatt Stadium will not hurt financially or image-wise. It might be a great investment in OU football's future.

Football fans change with the years just as cultures and ideas do among the people of the earth. If presented to the public properly and at the right time, Omaha University Football may reach undreamed of heights.

Certainly is worth one more try. . . .

Fort Hays Wins Meet; Gould Fifth

Fort Hays put a stop to an eight year Emporia stranglehold by winning the CIC cross country meet at Topeka last weekend.

The Tigers beat Emporia, 22-44 while Pittsburg and Omaha were far back at 84 and 87 points respectively. Emporia's John Camien covered the four mile course in 19:44 on a windy afternoon that saw winds gusting up to 35 miles per hour.

Friday, November 20, 1964 light standards mounted on the Fieldhouse for the West side was found to be the most practical. The estimated cost for this project was in the neighborhood of some 35 to 40 thousand dollars.

However, when the plan was presented to the Board of Regents, it was vetoed quickly and the idea was dropped. OU football would continue to be played in the afternoons and in direct competition with N. U. games at Lincoln and against radio broadcasts of the Husker road games.

Since that time, there has not been a single capacity crowd in Omaha University Stadium despite a solid football team that has run up several gaudy records against topflight small college talent.

1964 No Better

This past season saw a decline in attendance despite a 15-3-1 record the previous two years and two CIC titles. A contest that might have decided the conference crown, against Washburn, drew only an estimated 1400.

OU home games were played in a semi-funeralistic atmosphere with fine plays going un-

Charlie Asks A Chance

A stubby little man sits at his desk at Omaha's beautiful Civic Auditorium. A plump cigar juts from a determined jaw that has seen much success in many recent athletic ventures.

The man is Auditorium-Stadium Manager Charlie Mancuso, an Omaha U alumnus with a glittering record of fantastic promotions on everything from football to ping-pong.

It has been Mancuso's goal for the last five years to see Omaha University play some of its home football games in his imposing plant on South 13th.

Four times since 1955 have OU teams ventured onto Rosenblatt Stadium sod for a game, and four times the Indians have played to larger crowds than OU stadium has ever seen.

Now, in 1964, Mancuso's tireless work on behalf of Omaha sports fans has seen installation of field-length football bleachers on the South side and the gradual switch of the Stadium from simply a wonderful baseball park to an all-purpose plant that seats some 17,000 for football.

Mancuso points out that the Stadium is available to Omaha U for its games at reasonable rates. The energetic Italian will handle all promotion with his

OU To Host Ninth Annual NAIA Run As 175 Runners Vie For Championship

Defending champion Fort Hays State of the CIC will be the team to beat as Omaha U. hosts its ninth straight NAIA Cross Country Championships November 28th.

Starting time for approximately 175 runners on the Elmwood Park course will be 11 a.m. sharp. Meet Director Ernie Gorr, who gave birth to the meet some ten years ago in San Francisco, stated that at present there are 30 schools with entrants and 23 full teams to try for the first place trophy.

John Camien of Emporia State will be back to defend his title along with several other strong finishers from 1963 on the four-mile run.

Gorr indicated Western Illinois, Hays, Westmont (Calif.), Hillsdale (Mich.) and Howard Payne (Texas) have strong teams according to early reports. These five should be in the thick of the fight for the team title.

A strong Central Connecticut team withdrew last week when star runner Ray Carothers failed to round into form early enough.

The meet is one of two national championship events held in Omaha each year. The other is baseball's NCAA College World Series.

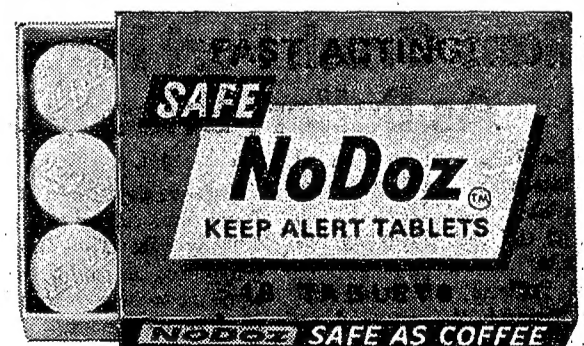

OU coach Lloyd Cardwell is hoping for a high finish from record-setting junior Ken Gould of Lyons, Nebraska. Gould set OU marks this fall and is the all-time leading mile runner in Omaha history with a 4:12 clocking set last spring.

Start and finish points for the four mile course will be just North of the Westbound park road adjacent to the west baseball diamond.

Only those schools with full teams on hand will be eligible for the team trophy. Individual finishers will receive medals or certificates for their efforts.

Gorr says that entries are closed at the present time and that the field will be changed only through dropouts between now and November 27th.

The flag football All-Stars beat the league champion Darts, 21-0, last Friday in the annual season ending All-Star game on the women's athletic field.

Quarterback Rich Tompsett of the Stars threw three scoring passes to account for all the scoring. Jerry Miller, Rich Vacek and Joe Sturek were on the receiving ends of the Tompsett aeriels.

Vacek kicked two extra points and Don Loftus booted the other for the Stars.

The Darts were unable to get their season long powerful offense in gear against a potent Star defense.

Indians Crush Fort Hays As Butler, Briscoe Star

Omaha U footballers ended the 1964 season on a bright note by crushing Fort Hays State, 33-15, at OU last Saturday before 2200.

The Indians amassed 468 yards through the air and on the ground to completely throttle the potent Hays attack that had led the league in rushing all year long.

So stymied was the Tiger offense that their ground game netted only 144 yards, a season low for the Kansas crew.

The win gave Omaha a 5-4 mark and a tie for second in the conference with a 2-2 log. It was OU's fourth straight winning season under head coach Al Caniglia.

Briscoe Shines

Quarterback Marlin Briscoe threw six times for 144 yards and tossed a scoring pass, his ninth of the year, to Lew Garrison. Fullback Larry Trofholz scored twice and Terry Wililams and Doug Butler added the other OU scores.

OU took a 13-7 lead into the locker room at the half, then stormed back to take a 20-9 third quarter advantage. That lead was upped to 33-9 before a last play touchodwn pass gave the Tigers their final tally.

Omaha's injured leading rusher, Gerry Allen, got in briefly as a defensive back. Freshman Butler picked up 98 yards as he finished a fine season in

Home Opener To Pit Omaha And Chico St.

Coach Jim Borsheim's eager basketball team will open the 1964-65 season Tuesday, December 1st against Midland College at Fremont's City Auditorium.

The Indians will return to Omaha the next night for a Fieldhouse encounter with Chico (Calif.) State at 8 p.m. Borsheim calls the latest OU edition "fast, experienced and a team that will definitely win some ballgames."

That is an understatement if records are any indication. Borsheim took over the Omaha reins in 1961 and proceeded to bring basketball fortunes to an all time high on the Omaha campus.

His first team was 5-14. But then the records improved to 10-12 and then last year, 12-11 for OU's first winner on the court in over a decade.

Singleton Improves

OU took second place in the conference last year, losing a final game argument to champ Emporia State that settled the championship.

The Indians also whipped NAIA champ Rockhurst on the home floor and added victories over Morningside and Southern South Dakota outside the CIC.

OU scoring was led by 6-5 freshman Sam Singleton of Morristown, New Jersey. The big center set a single season scoring mark of 429 points as well as breaking numerous other OU records.

Singleton will team with second team All-conference center Larry Villnow and returnee from 1962, Ed Woodward, to give the OU club height and strength under the boards.

Woodward is 6-8 and Villnow, a senior, is 6-7 and a three year letterman from Omaha.

In the backcourt for Omaha will be the speedy Myers brothers, Jim and Charlie as well as newcomer Dick Osterhaus, a returning squadman who did not letter in 1963.

The Myers boys lead the OU fast break and Charlie was the third leading scorer last year with a 12 point average.

Jim lost a battle with the books at mid-term last year and did not play second semester. Borsheim is looking for good things from Crane Junior College (Ill.) transfer Courtney Burress. The lanky forward possesses a good shooting eye and can rebound with power.

A very attractive home schedule for the 1964-65 Indians includes Fieldhouse encounters with Emporia, a return match with Rockhurst, Augustana of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, former CIC foe St. Benedict's and always tough Northeast Missouri's Bulldogs.

The Indians will again compete over the Christmas Holidays in the KHAS-TV Invitational at Hastings College.
